WEATHER

Cloudy and a little warmer today with a chance of showers tonight. Possible showers or snow flurries Wednesday and cooler.

24 DAYS UNTIL ...

Christmas will be here before we know it. Now there are 24 shopping days until Dasher and Dancer come prancing.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

Considerable cloudiness and a little warmer today with a chance of rain by evening. High temperature will be in the mid-40s, cloudy and warmer with rain likely tonight, low in the upper 30s. Probability of rain, 40 per cent today, 60 per cent tonight. Winds variable 5-10 miles an hour this morning, becoming southeasterly 10-20 miles per hour this afternoon. Outlook for Wednesday, chance of showers or snow flurries and cooler.

KINZUA DAM REPORT

Pool level 1313.58 feet (desired summer pool level 1328 feet; maximum level 1365 feet). Upstream water 46 degrees, downstream water 45 degrees. Warren Gauge 3.08 feet and falling.

WARREN COUNTY

Students at Eisenhower High School are involved in new teaching techniques and learning procedures using small group instruction.

Users of the Allegheny Reservoir will have to live with levels necessary to meet downstream needs, according to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

A public hearing on the proposed $30 million Shibui complex in Pleasant Township will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 30 in the county courthouse.

The county's 1969 budget includes the cost of operating a public defender's office.

An application for a trailer-church in Pleasant Township is turned down by the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

Warren's application for assistance in developing a low cost housing project with Appalachia funds will be aired at a special meeting in Harrisburg.

PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania takes the wraps off a $8 million job training program which, Gov. Shafer says, does federal manpower projects one better by guaranteeing jobs to its graduates.

Preliminary results from a new study indicate air pollution is more harmful than many people think.

THE NATION

Samples of air sucked from the deep recesses of a smoldering coal mine where 78 men have been trapped for nearly six days show a deadly concentration of gas.

President-elect Richard Nixon picks his long-time associate, Herb Klein, for a newly created top assignment -- to supervise press relations for the entire executive branch.

Tired and frightened three-year-old is returned home after being carried more than half way across the country by an abductor.

"I have these season tickets and..." says Gustave Pulter after spending the afternoon at a pro football game while his wife was giving birth to quadruplets.

THE WORLD

President Charles de Gaulle receives hopeful reports from money markets on his decision to keep the franc intact and backs up his gamble by sending France's toughest shock police to block any outward flow of currency.

The United States and France are fighting a quiet battle on whether to call an international conference to revise the values of the world's currencies for the first time in a quarter century.

SPORTS

Ohio State's students are dancing in the streets of Columbus today after the Associated Press poll vindicated their Saturday postgame chants by naming the Buckeyes to the top spot in this week's rankings.

Three Warren County basketball teams swing into action tonight, two for the second game of the season, and one for the opening tilt. It's Youngsville against Ridgway in the Eagles' first outing, while Tidouste hosts Commodore Perry and Eisenhower jousts to North Clymer, N.Y.

Warren's college cagers, the Edinboro Warren Off-Campus quintet, takes a trip to DuBois tonight in the collegians' season start. The charges of Coach Andy Randas are fielding their strongest team since the center's inception, and hopes are high for a sparkling season.

Dave Hart is no longer the coach at the University of Pittsburgh. The news, which surprised nobody and gratified thousands of scalp-craving Pitt alumni following the Panthers' winless season, was given out by Hart this morning.

SMALL GROUP INSTRUCTION

Mrs. Lynne Nadal, standing, teacher at Eisenhower High School, leads some members of her junior class in the new technique of small group instruction. The students, from left, are: Debbie Meleen, Carol Larson, Al Ostrander, Robert Carlson and Craig Miller.

EHS Students Involved In New Teaching Technique

Students at Eisenhower High School are involved in new teaching techniques and learning procedures under the provisions outlined in the Federal Government's Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

The program, known as Title III, is geared toward "the development and establishment of exemplary educational programs to serve as models for regular school programs."

This new technique uses small group instruction. There are two classes of four seniors and six juniors respectively. They may be found with desks in a circle formation. It appears as if there is no teacher since there isn't a dominant figure standing before the group nor is there even an adult participating in the discussions.

How are the classes conducted? Mrs. Lynne Nadal, responsible for conducting the new classes at Eisenhower, reports that initially the teacher helps the students learn the basic "tools" of literary analysis, definitions of terminology and explanations of approaches to analyze and evaluate literature. Once this is accomplished, the teacher fades into the background, and acts as a resource person.

The classes are autonomous; students conduct their own classes which are scheduled for three modules (25 minute periods) per week. The group discusses and reaches a general agreement as to what aspects of the work will be analyzed, work independently, and later return to the classroom and discuss the material.

A discussion leader (chosen from the previous week) asks a list of possible questions from the student manual. He initiates the discussion and interaction begins. The leader might ask, for example, whether Hamlet was a weak person or ask what caused his downfall? Debate ensues.

Each class period, one student remains apart from the whole and acts as secretary for the group and records the consensus reached by them on various points discussed.

Alan Wolf, Project Coordinator for the tri-county operation, explains: "First, there is the Course of Study for the purpose of motivation, information, and procedures for independent study and small group instruction; second, there

Public Defender Included In '69 County Budget

The county's 1969 budget will include the cost of operating a public defender's office, County Commissioners reported Monday morning.

The bill which makes it mandatory that each county have a public defender beginning Jan. 1, 1969 has passed both the House and Senate and is now before the governor awaiting his signature. Commissioner Thomas J. Donnelly said there's little chance the governor won't sign.

The salary of the public defender has been set at $9,000. The county also will incur the additional expenses of hiring a secretary, maintaining an office and purchasing equipment. In other business, commissioners asked that all budget requests be submitted to their office by Dec. 1.

Commissioners approved a motion to advertise for two 1969 sedans on Nov. 26, and Dec. 3 and 10. Bids will be accepted until 10 a.m. Dec. 16 at which time they will be opened. The automobiles are to replace two Sheriff Dept. vehicles. Commissioner Dr. David K. Rice said it's been standing policy to trade in the Sheriff Department's patrol cars every two years.

The commissioners approved a motion to pay bills totalling $5,153.15.

Downstream Needs Determine Allegheny Reservoir Levels

BY BOB CLEVER

Users of the Allegheny Reservoir will have to live with levels necessary to meet downstream needs, members of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau learned Monday while reviewing a meeting of area civic leaders last week.

At that meeting, Col. Wayne Nichols, U.S. Corps of Engineers said that there may be a drop of as much as 15 feet from the desired summer pool of 1328 feet. This, he noted, will vary with the amount of rainfall over the watershed. As the Allegheny River flow starts decreasing downstream, the Corps will start draw-down in July of each year to dilute two primary sources of pollution: (1) a heavy flow of mine acid from the Kiski River and (2) the effluent from sewage treatment plants from Warren to Pittsburgh, most of which provide only secondary treatment to about 85 per cent efficiency. (Warren has primary treatment, with Tidouste and Tionesta, among others, having no sewage treatment facilities.)

Ralph Freeman, supervisor, Allegheny National Forest, said it can be expected that in the spring some of the camp sites will be flooded and in the fall, difficulties will be encountered in using boat launching facilities because of the change in the reservoir levels.

It was reported that the Corps has agreed to supply a five-day forecast of reservoir levels to coincide with the present five-day forecast for downstream river levels.

In addition, Col. Nichols said that the Corps will publish a pamphlet showing graphically the draw-down curve and explaining the necessity for this draw-down so that reservoir users will understand the reason for any inconvenience they might encounter.

In other business, executive director Charles Tranter said that over 2,000 inquiries have already been received from throughout Pennsylvania and the surrounding states as the result of distribution of the new Hunters' and Fishermen's Directory released less than two weeks ago. Tranter reported that 30,000 of the brochures have been printed and that dis-

De Gaulle Appears To Win Gamble; Gold Flight Halted

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle received hopeful reports from money markets Monday on his decision to keep the franc intact and backed up his gamble by sending France's toughest shock police to block any outward flow of currency.

While stocks and the franc were moving up on the reopened Paris exchanges, and the franc firmed in Zurich, De Gaulle ordered squads of the black-capped Compagnie Republique de Securite, France's elite police, to the nation's borders. They will help enforce a series of severe new exchange regulations.

Buffeted for two weeks in a storm of speculation, the franc reached its highest level since the May-June crisis. There was some upward movement on other money markets in Europe. This seemed to French officials to reflect confidence in De Gaulle's program for escaping devaluation by "taking hold of ourselves" at home.

Reaction from foreign capitals, however, was still cautious with some bankers still maintaining restrictions on trading their francs. No one was willing to say that the crisis was near an end.

No good reading emerged on an important barometer: the return of French cash to France. Most financial observers feel the franc cannot be considered sound until a pattern develops over a period of months showing that the francs have returned home.

There was a rush in Frankfurt to buy U.S. dollars in exchange for marks, now that the West German government has made clear it will not revalue the mark upward.

The West German bank sold about 350 million in U.S. dollars, taking marks in exchange. The U.S. dollar was at 3.9795 to the mark, compared with last week's low of 3.97.

Nixon Names Herb Klein Head of Press Relations

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon tagged his longtime press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, Monday for a newly created top assignment — riding herd on all federal press agents.

Klein, a California newspaper editor, thus will become a super press agent or, to use his formal title, "director of communications" for the executive branch.

Before the election, many observers had expected Klein, a Nixon friend since 1946, to serve as White House press secretary in any Nixon administration.

However, the president-elect decided to abolish that familiar title and is trying to devise what was described by aides as a new "communications structure."

Klein, who will rank with the top level of Nixon personal aides, said he will coordinate public information activities throughout the federal government — except for the White House.

Declaring that the aim is to channel more, not less information to press and public, Klein predicted that "truth will become the hallmark of the Nixon administration."

Air Samples Show Mine Filled with Deadly Gas

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Samples of air sucked from the deep recesses of a smoldering coal mine where 78 men have been trapped for nearly six days showed Monday night a deadly concentration of methane and carbon monoxide gas. "You and I could not live in it," Consolidation Coal Co. President John Corcoran told an evening news conference. He referred to air in Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine.

"We know the hopes are slim. Let's face it," Corcoran said. "The question now is how much longer do we go before the judgment has to be made, that based on all the evidence accumulated, that the very best job that can be done has been done," he said.

"We're not quite there yet," he concluded.

There has been no contact with the 78 men since the first explosion shattered the sprawling mine complex Wednesday morning. The other 21 men on the midnight shift either escaped or were rescued.

Corcoran said analyses of the air samples drawn from the mine through a slim copper tube nearly 800 feet long showed the mine's methane content to be 7.4 per cent. The tolerable limits for methane in humans, he said, is 2 per cent.

Carbon monoxide in the mine's atmosphere was 50 times that which it should be, Corcoran said. The limit for humans is .02 per cent, he said, but analysis showed the rate to be one per cent.

Corcoran reaffirmed what other mine officials had said earlier, that no more rescue teams would be sent into the mine immediately. He said the decision reached earlier "will not be changed, at this time."

Rescue efforts took another setback earlier Monday when a small explosion sent a puff of smoke billowing from one of the mine's portals.

The pre-dawn blast Monday was the 13th at the mine near this tiny town and indicated to officials that fire still blazed in the mine's deep tunnels.

The first explosion thundered through the labyrinth of passageways early last Wednesday as the 99-man midnight shift was about to quit work.

Hearing on $30 Million Shibui Complex Slated

A public hearing on the proposed $30-million Shibui Complex in Pleasant Township will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 30 at the Court House.

Lewis K. Krueger, head of Kuni Development Corp., Jamestown, who set up the hearing date with County Commissioners Monday morning, said the official groundbreaking is set for April 15, 1969. Some tree clearing will probably take place prior to that date, however, Krueger said.

Krueger said the project is practically fully financed, with most public stock having been sold in New York State. There are, however, several stockholders from Warren, he said.

The public shares, Krueger continued, sold for $5, with private shares $100. Holders of private stock were given a 20 to 1 split, or 20 voting stocks, he said.

Krueger said he could foresee no difficulty arising at the public hearing.

The hearing is the final step for approval of the project. Earlier the Warren County Planning Commission approved the project plans and approved a request to have the area where the complex will be developed changed from conservation to a planned development district.

The proposed complex calls for construction of a 1,000-seat convention center, 100-room hotel, shopping center, golf course and housing development.

Krueger had reported at a previous Planning Commission meeting that the residential sites will be developed first. The complex will have its own water and sewage disposal facilities.

The Pennsylvania Electric Company, it also was previously noted, has entered into an agreement to install all underground cables for the completely electric complex.

State Reveals $6 Million Job Training Program

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania took the wraps off a $6 million job training program Monday which, Gov. Shafer says, does similar federal "manpower projects" one better by guaranteeing jobs to its graduates.

Shafer announced awarding of the first $1.8 million of the allocation for six programs aimed at training 1,940 hard-core unemployed persons from Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Erie and Pittsburgh and the Central Pennsylvania mining areas in jobs ranging from waitresses to road grader operators.

"One of the fatal flaws in manpower programs from the federal level in the past has been that persons completing training courses could not find jobs when they finished training," Shafer told a news conference.

Not only have Pennsylvania businesses involved in the programs pledged paying jobs either during training or after, said Shafer, but unions have agreed to accept the trainees as members.

Traditionally a stumbling block in building trade and other training programs, the unions have agreed "to give union cards to trainees" upon completion of specific courses, said Shafer.

Shafer said the state has "firm contractual agreements from labor unions" which in the past have been the target of

Air Pollution May Be More Harmful Than Thought

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Preliminary results from a new study indicate air pollution is more harmful than many people think.

The study is being made at the University of Pennsylvania. It was summarized recently in a report by the Fels Institute of State and Local government on a study made for the Regional Conference of Elected Officials.

The statistical analysis associates air pollution with many of the most widespread and chronic diseases. The study also

Crane Rigged Work Boat Sinks Mysteriously

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—A 170-foot crane-rigged workboat sank mysteriously by the stern Monday while helping move a huge oil drilling platform. Sixteen of the 25 men aboard were rescued from the wind-swept seas.

Six of the nine missing men were feared trapped in their bunks when the $875,000 vessel went down with less than three minutes warning.

Two empty life rafts and a life jacket were found hours later by aircraft and rescue vessels searching the scene, eight miles offshore in the oil-rich, island-rimmed Santa Barbara Channel.

The steel-hulled Triple Crown was new and specially rigged to lift and lower 10-ton anchors that keep floating drilling platforms in place over drilling sites.

Something went wrong at 3:45 a.m., as the boat was hauling in the last of eight 2,000-foot chains anchoring the Blue Water II, a floating platform with an acre of deck leased by Humble Oil Co.

Hope dimmed for the missing men. A Coast Guard spokesman said survival time for anyone immersed in the choppy, 60-degrees water was four to eight hours.

'Super Daddy' Sees Game; Wife Has Quadruplets

DETROIT (AP)—"I have these season tickets and . . . well, I guess, I was just hoping for two miracles in one day."

Thus Gustave Pultor ex-claimed his presence at a football game less than eight hours after his wife gave birth to quadruplets—three girls and a son, tipping the scales to a total of 15 pounds, 7 ounces.

The 34-year-old Pultor of suburban Redford Township was around when his attractive wife, Pamela, 31, began her delivery at Dearborn's Oakwood Hospital at 4:58 a.m. Sunday and also when it was completed at 5:22 a.m. with the birth of the son.

He also was around for the beginning and the end of the Detroit-New Orleans National Football League game which wound up in a 20-20 deadlock and thus snuffed out Pultor's hopes for a second "miracle"—a Detroit victory.

"I wouldn't have come, if the nurses hadn't assured me that Pam and the kids were doing fine," Gustave told ticket-holding buddies along the 30-yard line, who kept pointing him out as "Super-Daddy." "I don't blame him for going to the game," said Pultor's brother-in-law, Cliff Gieske. "He's got problems."

The Pultors have two other children, Brian, 6, and Todd, 1,

Bartender's Life Just As Exciting as Anyone's

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—A bartender's life may not be as glamorous as that of a ballplayer, politician, policeman or entertainer.

But Michael J. Size, owner and drink dispenser at Scranton's Savoy Restaurant and Bar since 1939, insists it is as exciting as anyone's.

"In this job," the 61-year-old, gray-haired Size says, "A lot of things happen, and a guy must be a combination of many people if he is going to be a success."

"In addition to knowing how to mix thousands of drinks, a good bartender has to be a little bit lawyer, doctor, minister, policeman and marriage counselor."

It's a standard rule at the Savoy—an old-fashioned type circle bar with hundreds of old photos and advertisements tacked to the walls—that discussions on religion, wars, politics, labor unions and birth control are taboo.

"We have that rule," Size explains, "because everytime a group of people begins talking about one of those subjects, it's usually not too long before a fight starts."

Do most people like to talk in a bar, or do they simply want to drink?

"Well," Size smiles, "I would guess 90 per cent of the people come in to talk and meet their friends."

hints air pollution may speed the process of aging.

In fact, it suggests the health hazard from air pollution is so serious that almost any achievable controls are justified.

The health hazard was cited to support the Institute's "urgent" recommendation for a strong, three-state air pollution commission in the 11-county area extending from Wilmington, Del., to Trenton, N. J.

The statistical analysis raises two controversial subjects:

—It challenges the prevailing assumption there is some "safe" level of pollution below which no health hazard exists. If there is no safe level, stricter, costlier and more controversial control measures will need to be considered.

—It questions the almost statistical practice of adjusting disease and death rates for age. If the rates are age-adjusted, air pollution seems to be less strongly associated with them. Researchers used a statistical technique called multivariate analysis by which many possible "causes" and "effects" can be studied simultaneously in a computer. The results do not prove cause-effect relationships, but show statistical associations that indicate possible cause-effect relationships.

Using statistics on 11 different pollutants and on death rates from 10 different disease categories in 38 American cities, researchers found:

—Sulfates and chromium were associated with increased deaths from lung cancer, and copper and titanium with a decrease.

—Sulfur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide were associated with an increase in deaths from stomach and intestinal cancer, and in total cancer deaths, while copper was associated with decreased deaths in those categories.

—Sulfur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide were associated with an increase in deaths from arteriosclerotic heart disease, the No. 1 killer. Cadmium was associated with a decrease.

and the father is a specifications analyst for Ford Motor Co. at its Dearborn assembly plant.

The quadruplets may well owe their lives to a new procedure tried for the first time at Dearborn Oakwood by Dr. George Klutke.

The physician, in simplest terms, tied off the base of Mrs. Pultor's uterus so she couldn't have the babies too early.

When they did arrive Sunday they lacked six weeks of having reached the full nine-month span, but they had developed sufficiently and gained enough weight to be out of danger, he said.

The girls weighed in at 3 pounds, 4 ounces; 3 pounds, 5 ounces, and 4 pounds, 2 ounces; the boy at 4 pounds, 12 ounces.

Dr. Klutke said he conferred with other obstetricians who had handled multiple births and "tied a sling around the base of the uterus—like tying off a paper sack." He added that the sling procedure had permitted Mrs. Pultor to be "up and about," instead of being kept off her feet.

X-rays in September had disclosed quadruplets.

The Pultors live in a one-story brick home with white trim which has three bedrooms.

"In fact, if all a guy wanted to do was drink, like some alcoholism experts claim, he could do that at home, and he would never be in a bar."

"In my 29 years of serving drinks, I have listened to all kinds of people talk about all kinds of problems."

"But the one problem that far outnumbers all the rest is in-law trouble—mother-in-law, father-in-law, brother-in-law."

Of all the different kinds of drinks, which is the most popular in Scranton?

"The biggest favorite is the good old shot and a beer chaser—a bolshermaker," says Size. Do two kinds of drinks in one evening tend to give a guy a hangover in the morning?

"You bet it does," Size says. "Mixing drinks is the worst thing in the world a drinker can do."

What drink would he recommend for a beginner?

"I don't know," he says, "I don't drink."

U.S., France Quietly Consider International Conference

BRUSSELS (AP)—The United States and France are fighting a quiet battle over whether to hold a major international conference that would revise the values of the world's currencies for the first time in almost a quarter of a century.

The purpose of a conference would be to halt the crises that have been shaking the world's money markets every few months.

Henry H. Fowler, U.S. secretary of the treasury, has come out strongly against a conference. He said improving the situations should be an "evolutionary process."

President Johnson's administration, with less than two months to go, does not want to get into an enterprise of this kind or to commit President-elect Richard M. Nixon. A conference now could bring an increase in the price of gold and a decrease in the value of the dollar—though probably only a small one.

Johnson would not want to be blamed for even a slight devaluation. If and when the United States disengages from Vietnam, the dollar is expected to grow stronger, and maybe no devaluation would be needed.

Some experts say eagerness to delay a conference may have been a major reason for Johnson's strong pledge of support to France after the decision not to devalue the franc. If the French decision is a failure and a new crisis blows up in the next few weeks, it might make a conference inevitable.

President Charles de Gaulle has long urged a conference. Foreign Minister Michel Debre has asked for one repeatedly over the past year.

Some experts think that De Gaulle in refusing to devalue the franc was determined to show that if support from other countries failed to save it, the international monetary system would be in such disarray that only a major conference could settle matters and give world business the peace it needs.

West Germany, now the most powerful economic force in Europe, does not want a conference either—at least not at this time. Elections are coming up next October and a change in the value of the mark would hurt Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's government with the voters.

He has vowed that he will not reveal the mark upward, as other countries are urging him to do, as long as he remains chancellor.

After the new administration takes over in Washington Jan. 20, pressure for a big meeting is likely to revive.

The last one, the Bretton Woods conference, was held at the end of World War II. Since then many countries have changed the value of their currencies, some of them several times, but there has been no general revision.

Advocates of a conference point out that as the years passed they have brought great changes in the world's economy. Western Europe and Japan received as big exporters. Britain's exports have declined. The role of the United States has become relatively less important, though it is still the world's biggest trader and investor.

North Warren Kids Visit Art Center

The two sixth grade classes at the North Warren Elementary School visited the Warren Art League Center Monday morning.

Mrs. Helena Iseman, principal, said the students were the first from an elementary school to visit the center and observe the paintings and sculpture, there for a special showing. Mrs. Richard McClain, Art League member, explained the various works of art to the students.

Besides Mrs. Iseman, the school's two sixth grade teachers, Peter Molinaro and James Graziano, accompanied the group.

Kidnapped Child Back Home

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Tired and frightened, 3-year-old Brenda Ann Maquar returned home Monday after being carried more than half way across the country by an abductor.

The blonde tyke, wearing a red jumper, red stockings and a white blouse, joined her parents in a tearful, silent reunion at New Orleans International Airport where she was flown from Las Vegas, Nev.

Mrs. Philip Maquar, clutching the girl as they left the airport, said Thanksgiving would start early this year in their home. "We feel like now," said the child's father, a welder.

Brenda, kidnaped from a stroller left in front of a neighborhood grocery store by her young brother and sister who were given money by a man to buy balloons in the store last Wednesday, was returned to New Orleans after being found in a Needles, Calif., hospital with a man charged with the kidnaping.

Brenda and Frank Willis Castle, 39, of Fresno, Calif., were taken to Needles Friday after an auto accident on Interstate 40 near Topock, Ariz., about seven miles southeast of Needles.

For two days her true identity was unknown.

Hospital spokesmen said the girl—registered under the name Castle—was hysterical while being treated for minor injuries and told nurses, "He's not my daddy, he's not my daddy." Because of difficulty in understanding the girl, hospital spokesmen said, the FBI was not notified until Sunday.

Castle, who reportedly suffered six fractured ribs, was placed under arrest and charged with kidnaping by the FBI. Authorities said Brenda was unharmed and had not been molested.

Accompanied by FBI agents and the wife of a Needles minister who took care of her Sunday, Brenda departed the plane alone and was met first by her crying mother who had brought a coat for her.

She didn't say much, and neither did her parents.

Mrs. Maquar picked up her daughter and hugged her silently. Her father joined them moments later and they prepared to leave the airport terminal.

The discovery of the girl in a Needles hospital ended an extensive manhunt by city, parish, state and federal authorities in the New Orleans area. In addition, civic groups and hundreds of individuals joined in a mas-

MASON DENISON

Scott and the Other Party

HARRISBURG — Does Pennsylvania stand to "lose" by having its two U. S. Senators fold in Washington in the Republican fold — when both houses of Congress will be predominantly Democratic?

The question is a valid one; it's been asked repeatedly since the great Humphrey smother of November 5 (smother of Pennsylvania, that is), but which saw Republican Congressman Richard S. (for Schuylkill) Schweiker emerge in his senatorial bid as the only successful Republican candidate for statewide office in the Keystone State.

When Senator-elect Schweiker dons his new senatorial toga, having plucked the cloak from longtime Democratic Senator Joseph S. (for Schuylkill) Clark, he will join Pennsylvania's other Republican in the senatorial arena — Hugh D. (for Doggett) Scott, now rounding out his second term along the banks of the Potomac.

Thus on the surface at least it would seem that the two Republican elephant riders would face some rather mournful prospects, surrounded by all those Democratic members of Congress.

A look at the record though of one who has already gone through the ropes, namely the venerable Senator Scott, may well throw some light on what is in store, or at least in prospect, for Pennsylvania in its Republican duo stance.

The Scott case is somewhat of a paradox on the American political scene, and inasmuch as it means quite a bit insofar as Pennsylvania is concerned, it is perhaps well worth looking into in some depth.

Although opposing Democrats froth a bit at the thought and will bypass every streetlight to admit it, Pennsylvania's Senator Scott has amassed a rather amazing record of "getting things done" from administrations in Washington of opposition political faith.

During the tenure of the late President Kennedy he maintained an unusually good working relationship, having known him personally for a number of years plus a working relationship as fellow senators-in-arm during the Kennedy senatorial years.

In fact it was a pick-up-the-telephone "Hello Mr. President" affair — until Republican Hugh Scott worked in a Democratic presidential industry boost for Pennsylvania (with Scott getting the credit) after which screaming Democrats brought about a (grinning) calls-through-channels schedule for the Republican Senator from Pennsylvania.

With the present President (that's a play on words) the relationship has been just as cordial — if not more so. The as-cordial-between-Democratic-President Johnson and Republican Senator Scott goes back quite a number of years. It has been such that Hugh Doggett Scott can pick up the phone and call Mr. Johnson — direct.

The point in all this is that it forms the backdrop for Pennsylvania on the senatorial front in Washington during the upcoming years when the Keystone State will have two Republican senators in a Democratic-dominated Congress.

Two other facets though add to the scene.

One is the fact that this time there will be a Republican President electing the rose garden for a change, which unquestionably will mean an even finer degree of liaison between the White House and Pennsylvania on the senatorial front.

Secondly, the new senator-elect is no newcomer to the Washington scene. His years in Congress are regarded as excellent background. As a member of the important and influential House Armed Services Committee Mr. Schweiker learned the ropes and in so doing became well acquainted with influential members of Congress in both House and Senate.

In the final analysis, the two should make an excellent team to the ultimate benefit of Pennsylvania. Both admit it would be more delightful if the Congress were Republican through-out — but on the other hand over the years they've learned to work with their Democratic colleagues on the other side of the aisle.

The difference, beginning in 1969, is that it will be a double-barreled effort — backed up by a fellow Republican in the White House, all of which should bode well for the Keystone State.

Defense Fund for Fund-Raisers

WASHINGTON — My friend, Rumpelmeier, the arch-Democrat, called me up the other day with a surprise request. He wanted me to contribute to a "defense fund" for the Republicans who may be prosecuted under the Corrupt Practices Act for failure to meet the deadline on their reports of contributors to the Nixon-Agnew campaign.

"But Rumpelmeier," I said, "why are you getting involved in this?"

"I believe in it," Rumpelmeier said. "Nixon and Agnew ran on a law-and-order platform and they vowed to prosecute anyone who breaks the law. If they follow through on their pledge, then the first thing the new attorney general will have to do is take the people who raised money for Nixon and Agnew to trial."

"But surely, Rumpelmeier," I said, "Nixon wouldn't prosecute his own people for what was probably an administrative oversight. After all, it's just politics."

"That's what you say, but Nixon and Agnew specifically said they would not tolerate any monkeying around with the law. They promised if they were elected that there would no longer be some laws for people to obey, and others that they didn't have to obey. They won't have any choice but to see that the men who failed to file their reports feel the full weight of our judicial system. Now, how much can you pledge to the defense fund?"

"Wait a minute, Rumpelmeier. No court in the land is going to convict men for being tardy in handing in political contribution reports."

"I'd like to think so," Rumpelmeier said. "But both Nixon and Agnew said during their campaigns that one of the big issues in our land was that the courts were too lenient on criminals, and that you don't prevent crime by letting people who break the law get off scot-free. I can't see where Nixon could do anything but lower the boom on his fund-raisers."

"You know, Rumpelmeier," I said, "I'm always willing to give for a good cause, but even if the committee chairman were tried, what could they get?" "The law says they could get as much as a $10,000 fine and up to two years in jail," Rumpelmeier said. "Even as a Democrat I don't think a Republican should have to do time for putting Nixon in the White House."

"I believe you're overreacting, Rumpelmeier. This whole thing will probably fade away." "Not if Nixon gets a new attorney general. Don't you understand? The Nixon Administration is trying to dramatize the issue of law and order. What better way to do it than to have the new attorney general try as his first case 'The People Versus the Nixon-Agnew Fund-Raising Committee'? It would show beyond a shadow of a doubt that the new Administration means business. I figure if we can get the defense fund started now, the poor guys responsible for the reports will have a better chance."

"You've got a good heart, Rumpelmeier," I said. "Who would have ever thought that you would be concerned with Republican fund-raisers going to jail?"

"I wouldn't have gotten involved," Rumpelmeier said, "but I'm concerned with justice, and Agnew refused to talk about justice during the campaign. He said people either have to obey the law or see that it's changed. That doesn't give the fund-raisers any place to go."

"OK, Rumpelmeier. Put me down for $50. If you're man enough to raise money for their defense fund, then I don't see any reason why I shouldn't kick in. By the way, what do you think the defense will be?" "We're going to claim it was a crime of passion."

RUSSELL BAKER

Vengeance Of Las Vegas

WASHINGTON — In Los Angeles people were gasping for air and driving home three and four times a day to shave, shower and change cars. It was intolerable.

"You're looking for air?" The airline man asked across a counter shrouded in sulphur fumes. "What do you want to do breathe, or something?" The hostility of his tone seemed to exhaust him — being a Southern Californian he had probably been up all night worrying that his sister might marry a Communist — and he had to go to the respirator to revive himself.

"You want air," he gasped. "There's a plane leaving in 20 minutes for Vegas."

Vegas! What excitement diffuses those two romantic latinate syllables. Images of James Bond outwitting the Mafia at Chemin-de-Fer; of Frank Sinatra strolling through casinos shouting, "A hundred on the black!"; of Howard Hughes struggling incognito with taxes, desert and real estate; of frizzled old dolls from prairie crossroads towns feeding their piggy banks into slot machines. It was a bleak prospect, but at least it was air.

The jet swooped down over a desert flowering in rusted auto parts, hit the runway and deposited everybody at a large building full of one-armed bandits. Drunk on air, the passengers rushed upon the machines with a lust that was fearful to see.

Thirty seconds later when there wasn't a coin left in the crowd, everybody headed for hotels, panting with anticipation of bankruptcy. "What's the matter with you?" asked a man wearing a purple jacket, mustache and yellow sunglasses. "You didn't play the slots at the airport?"

"I'm just here for the air," "Slick," the man whispered to his companion, a creature in gold pajamas, platinum hair and fuchsia sunglasses who was probably a woman.

In the hotel lobby the bell-boys were busy making 50-cent bets on the outcome of a college football game to be played in California. "I'll give you U.C.L.A. and seven points," said the lad who led the way to a room modeled after the harem of the Sultan Haroun El-Taschid.

"I'm just here for the air," "I'm just here for the air," they boys' expression shrieked incredulity. Explanations seemed essential to save face before this lad-of-the-world. "I never gamble. I'm a loser. I haven't won anything gambling since 1937 when I went to a bingo game in South Baltimore and won two cans of vegetable shortening."

Later, at the lunch waitress said, "I'll toss you, double or nothing, for the check." "I never gamble," "Oh," she said, "You must be the one who's just here for the air."

It was embarrassing in the bar. Men stopped playing the match game and stared. "Just here for the air," somebody whispered. It was uncomfortable, but the escape route through the casino was worse.

Dice stopped clattering, wheels stopped spinning, cards were suspended in mid-air. "Just for the air?" Somebody whispered in the thundering silence.

It was terrible. Escape was imperative. A cab plunged into a psychedelic street of insane electric-light signs. "Have you heard," asked the cab driver, "that there's a guy here just for the air?" In a huge public room magnificent women were prancing and singing before a thousand people, and as the waiter led the way to a table in the dark each one of the thousand turned and stared, and the room hummed with the sound of, "Just for the air?" and the answer, "just for the air."

Outside the reporters and photographers were waiting. Press rooms had been suspended to await the news of the man who intended to leave Las Vegas without losing a cent. "You have been a consistent loser since winning two cans of vegetable shortening in 1937?" At dawn with the aid of Howard Hughes' disguise consultant, the trip to the airport was eventless and the jet headed east to Washington.

At Washington there was unfortunate news from the air-plane. No baggage. "From Las Vegas, eh?" asked a jolly clerk. "Well I'm afraid you've lost not only your shirt, but your suit, your socks, your underwear and your shoes."

"What's funny, man?" "Sorry, sir, but on the TV news last night there was this item about the guy who went to Las Vegas —"

"I know. Just for the air."

Wallace Squeezed the Bottle

BIRMINGHAM — Insiders who dare not be identified have told this column that George Wallace, the law-and-order candidate, has squeezed huge sums out of the liquor industry to help finance his political campaigns.

For the privilege of selling liquor in Alabama, distillers and distributors have paid kickbacks under the table to Wallace's political agents. All liquor purchases are made by the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, which does a $100 million annual business to satisfy the thirst of Alabama's tipplers.

This column already has documented the operations of one Wallace agent, Robert M. Millsap, who has been collecting half of the commissions on all Ezra Brooks and Mar-Salle brands sold to the state. More than $138,000 in liquor kickbacks has been traced to him through cancelled checks, bank records and brokerage accounts.

The pay-offs began shortly after George Wallace became governor, and continued through the administration of his late wife, Lurleen. It seems more than a coincidence that Millsap has been Wallace's chief fund raiser in the 36 counties of northern Alabama.

Names of other political agents who allegedly have been receiving liquor take-offs have been furnished to this column by informants in a position to know what they're talking about. It will take subpoenas and sworn testimony, however, to pin down the full facts.

Political favoritism by the ABC board should be evident to anyone who buys booze in Alabama. The shelves of the state liquor stores are loaded with "dog" brands. Big-name brands appear and disappear mysteriously. Many old favorites haven't been available in the state stores since Wallace began running the state.

One informant claimed that Hiram Walker & Sons flatly refused to hire a political agent to open up the state for the sale of Ten High and Walker deluxe brands. A company spokesman confirmed that Hiram Walker products are not distributed in Alabama but said he had no "personal" knowledge of any political offer.

Gov. Albert Brewer, who inherited the state machinery from the late Lurleen Wallace, is fully aware of the liquor scandals and is trying to clean them up. He has just appointed a respected ex-FBI agent, Spencer Robb, to run the ABC board.

After this column began poking into the pay-offs, according to insiders, Wallace's agents tried to implicate Brewer by demanding additional payments in Brewer's name. This appears to be an attempt to discourage the governor from exposing scandals that might also embarrass him.

As it happens, this column has evidence of liquor pay-offs since Brewer took over the governorship. Insiders claim, however, that Brewer had no part in soliciting under-the-table payments and that the money went into Wallace's presidential campaign.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The NAACP Moves

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has finally moved. For years and years it subscribed to the futile doctrine that one cannot criticize one's own: one's own being, in this case, all other colored people. Insiders and not a few outsiders knew that such gentlemen as Roy Wilkins and John Morris, the two principal executives of NAACP, have been agnost at the extremist that has issued from the irresponsible black left. But until now, the Association has been reluctant to identify black extremism for fear of appearing treacherous; so that the present break suggests that, on reflection, their policy of see-no-evil hear-no-evil over there in the fever swamps of black ideology has struck them as unsound. Or it suggests that the intensification of extremist activity is now such that it cannot, as a matter of fact, be ignored.

I think of the Reverend Ralph Abernathy who, facing a college audience the day before the NAACP published its disavowal, was asked the question: "Do you believe that Richard Nixon and William Buckley are racists?" to which he gave the answer: "Well, they are very nearly that." Granted, it is hard to wrest any analytical meaning from such a statement, it being as hard to be very nearly a racist as to be very nearly pregnant.

Now I do not mean to suggest that Mr. Wilkins has now shown such penitence as would be appropriate in, for instance, setting right the record on the NAACP's own demagogic and irresponsible criticisms of Barry Goldwater when he ran for President. Nor can we expect retroactive criticism of Martin Luther King for drawing comparisons between Goldwater and Hitler — as well except the Friends of the Little Flower to attack the Little Flower.

In fact, the statement did not single out anybody at all by name, in the magisterial tradition. And, interesting also, the statement gave reasons against black extremism which are unrelated to questions of right and wrong, as in, "Dr. Abernathy, you mustn't call Mr. Nixon a racist, because if you do he might bite." That is different from saying: "Dr. Abernathy, you mustn't call Mr. Nixon a racist because he isn't one."

"The time has come," said the NAACP editorial, "for speaking out loud and clear lest the entire race be branded as hate-mongers, segregationists, advocates of violence, and worse." That is solid tactical judgment, because there is great risk in the unjust association of the many with the sins of the few. Eldridge Cleaver hasn't a large black following, but it exists, and for his echo chambers, he has the New Left.

SYLVIA PORTER

Fighting Population Explosion

"I am deeply concerned over the world population explosion and the millions about whom you wrote a column recently who are now starving each year. But the average concerned citizen feels helpless to do anything about this terrible and worsening situation. Can you suggest anything I, and others like me, can do?"

This letter from a young woman in Texas is typical of dozens of pleas and queries I've received since I reported the frightening estimate that 10,000 individuals are now starving to death every day.

Her question is not an easy one and it's tempting to try to weasel out of it by vaguely advising you to write your senators and representatives. But I just won't weasel out; the significance of the subject is too urgent and potentially tragic. And its economic meaning, for all 3.5 billion of us now on earth, is too overwhelming.

So here is what you, the lone individual citizen who wants to help solve the U.S. and world population problem, can do:

Bring the facts to the attention of your local community and political leaders. Unwanted children in your own hometown and state are as important an issue as school bond issues or new highways. Insist that your public welfare and health departments face the matter honestly and maturely. Make sure they are taking full advantage of available public and private funds for family planning services.

Take the time, over and over again, to write letters to your local — or any influential — newspaper editor, radio or TV station. Make sure these media are reporting on the subject. Surely the fact that 5,300,000 American women who want access to family planning services don't have that access today is highly newsworthy. Surely the fact that our Agency for International Development is earmarking only $5.3 million during this fiscal year for the purchase of birth control devices for use in other nations is scandalous.

Equip yourself, your friends and interested local groups with basic information on population problems. Among the most active private non-profit groups in the field are the Planned Parenthood Federation Campaign to Check the Population Explosion, and the Population Council in New York City; the Population Reference Bureau and Population Crisis Committee in Washington. These organizations are loaded with educational materials of every type.

Contribute money and/or time as a volunteer to these organizations. Many private foundations and other groups concerned with family planning have been living so long on a shoestring in a world of taboos that some don't even try to solicit funds. They need a lot of money.

Encourage your local colleges and universities to multiply their research efforts in the fields of human reproduction, birth control and the communication of modern information to the undereducated peoples of the world. This whole field is grossly neglected in most of our universities and medical research groups — as evidenced by the fact that an ultrasimple, ultraconvenient, low-cost, foolproof birth control device or pharmaceutical product still has not found its way to the U.S. or world marketplace.

Endorse the efforts of the United Nations' Population Division and press for an increasingly aggressive attitude by the U.N. in the words of one observer, "the U.N. is just beginning to come alive on this issue."

Finally, you can write your senators and representatives and urge them to push the dozen or more bills which always are before Congress to liberalize our attitudes toward family planning and population control.

In sum, if you take one small step on your own, you can help our world make magnificent strides.

And then says the NAACP ominously, "There is the additional factor that responsible leaders who speak out against the extremists have been subjected to threats of violence." For example, Mr. Herman Ferguson has been indicted for conspiring to kill moderate Negro leaders. And of course nothing is more important than to guarantee the physical safety of such leaders from the ruffians, the muggers, the blackmailers. The NAACP will perhaps understand what some of us mean in calling for law and order.

JIM BISHOP

'The Day JFK Was Shot'

The Warren Times-Mirror and Observer continues today an exclusive serial condensation of the book The Kennedys asked Jim Bishop NOT to write, the book that William Manchester COULD NOT write, Bishop, famed author of The Day Lincoln Was Shot, had talked to President and Mrs. Kennedy in the White House a few weeks before the assassination. And he obtained from President Johnson the only interview Mr. Johnson has given containing his vivid recollection of the assassination and the events following on that fateful day, Nov. 22, 1963. Thus for the first time Bishop has been able to weave together the facts of the Presidential tragedy and its controversial aftermath. He began his minute by minute account with seven a.m. at Fort Worth. It continues second by second moments after 12 noon.

Chapter Two

In the jump seat of the President's car, Governor John Connally, a hunter, knew the sound. The expression under the pale cowboy had changed to open-mouthed disbelief. His mouth formed words not yet on his tongue: "Oh, no, no, no," as his head swung to the left to see the President.

Agent Roy Kellerman, in the front seat, thought he heard Kennedy speak and turned to see both hands coming up toward the face. He ordered the Secret Service driver, William Greer: "Let's get out of here!" Perhaps three seconds had elapsed since the first shot from the 6th floor window of the Texas School Book Depository. Mrs. Kennedy, disturbed by the sudden sound, looked toward her husband. His eyes sought hers in a daze.

The man in the window had the target plainer now. In the four-power telescopic sight fixed upon the Mannlicher-Carcano military model, Kennedy was about eighty-five feet away. This time the trigger was squeezed more steadily. The bullet, aimed diagonally downward, went through the clothing between the bottom of the neck and the right shoulder. It separated the strap muscles, cut through the trachea into sunlight, drilled into Governor Connally's back, came out the front of the rib cage to shatter itself against his raised right wrist and deflect downward to furrow the left thigh and become inert against his leg.

The Governor had a sensation of being punched in the back. President Kennedy struggled to clutch his throat. With the hole now there it is doubtful that he could have uttered an articulate sound.

Rufus Youngblood rose from the front seat of the car second from the President's, yelling, "Get down!" He shoved Vice President Johnson's right shoulder over toward Mrs. Johnson and Senator Ralph Yarborough, then jumped up high enough to sit down on his man.

Mrs. Kennedy, seeing the agony on her husband's face, screamed. His last conscious effort was a slump toward her — who knows? — maybe to protect her. Spectators who had struggled to approach the President began flight.

William Greer hit the accelerator of the President's car as Kellerman roared into a microphone for the police escort. "Take us to a hospital, quick!"

The great head that was sinking to the left came up in the rifle sights again and the trigger was squeezed. As before, the explosive sound swelled through the plaza. This bullet entered the right rear of the skull. Portions of the head exploded from the body in two chunks. One flew backward into the street. The other fell beside the President.

Shock froze the mind of Mrs. Kennedy. She had seen the piece of her husband's head turning in air to drop behind the car. She tried to climb out on the trunk of the automobile.

As Governor Connally tried to breathe, the wound in his chest sucked air. "My God," he screamed, "they are going to kill us all!" as he heard the third shot. His wife, as protective and determined as the Texas frontierswomen of old, cradled his head in her hands and murmured: "Be quiet. You are going to be all right."

The Lincoln bucked the sudden acceleration, but Agent Clint Hill, who had grasped a handrail, hung on, reached over with one hand, and shoved Mrs. Kennedy back into the seat. The agony in her face turned full upon him. She shouted: "They have shot his head off!" Hill looked down. The President was on his left side, his head in the roses his wife had been given. The eyes, wide open, stared at the back of Mrs. Connally. One foot hung over the right door.

As the car swerved onto Stemmons for the race to Parkland Memorial Hospital, four miles away, Mrs. Kennedy pathetically held up an arm. "I have his brains in my hand," The agony on Hill's face was screened by the big sunglasses. He looked back and shook his head no.

The man stayed at the 6th floor window of the Depository until he could see his victim had convulsed. Then the rifle retreated through the window. It was carried across the room and placed between cartons of books. A fourth shell remained in it. The spent shells remained where they dropped, when the assassin walked downstairs.

In the press pool car, Merrill Smith of United Press International lifted the pool phone from between his knees, got the Dallas bureau and said: "Three shots were fired at President Kennedy's motorcade in downtown Dallas." Meager word was out to the world.

Howard Brennan, who had watched all of it from his position at Dealey Plaza, was dismayed to see the police "running in the wrong direction." He convinced a policeman, speaking desperately that the whole thing had come from that window up there. Mr. Brennan gave him a description of the man behind the gun. Officer W. E. Barnett wrote the words: "White male, approximately 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 165, in his early thirties." It was the first "make" on Lee Harvey Oswald.

Other persons were now trying to tell policemen their individual versions of what had happened. Everyone, it seemed, had a story to which he would swear.

At the Emergency overhang, at the Parkland Hospital, cars whipped to stops in disarray, and men threw themselves out wildly, yelling. Emory Roberts, agent in charge of this shift of Secret Service, opened the door on Mrs. Kennedy's side, saw the President face down on her leg, and said: "Let us get the President." Mrs. Kennedy said, "No." The last sentences she said in the car were to Clint Hill: "You know he's dead. Let me alone." Roberts turned to Kellerman. "You stay with the President. I'm taking some men to Johnson."

Quickly, three agents hustled Lyndon Johnson through the Emergency door. He was flapping his arms and trying to get back to the Kennedy car. Agent Youngblood said, "No," firmly. Other agents surrounded Mrs. Johnson. That moment the nation had a new President, but he did not know it, although the men around him did.

An ambulance cart was beside the car, but no one could get over Governor Connally to reach the President. Mrs. Kennedy still refused to let anyone touch her husband. Clint Hill whispered to her urgently, "Please let us remove the President." She repeated, "No." Hill removed his jacket and dropped it gently over the head.

Inside the hospital, Mr. Johnson now followed the phalanx of Secret Service agents without question. He had been convinced by the agents this might be a plot against him also. For a while he understood fear.

At last, the stretchers were going in at a run. First there was Governor Connally; behind was President Kennedy, on his back with the coat over his face. Mrs. Kennedy trotted along, her fingers trying to maintain contact with him. Damp blood had penetrated the white gloves to her fingers. The pink wool suit was soaked down the right side, as was the stocking.

The Governor was wheeled into Trauma Two as the President was taken into Trauma One. Nurses looked at Dr. C.J. Carrioco, got his nod, and used surgical shears to cut off the President's clothes. Carrioco reached down for a pulse. There was none. The doctor tried a blood pressure cuff. There was no pressure.

Now medical help was jamming the two emergency rooms, and one doctor was making a cutdown on the right ankle; a nurse was doing it to the left arm. The electrocardiogram had shown a faint palpable heartbeat, hesitant, irregular, and weak. Then it stopped. A doctor sought to assist breathing by doing a tracheotomy and found the right spot. He enlarged it and thrust a cuffed tube down into the bronchial area. He was dead, but the work was going on as though something magnificent was about to happen, when Dr. George Burkley, the President's physician, came into the room. He had been assigned against his protests to the 16th car of the motorcade by Kenny O'Donnell, the general of the palace squad.

Mrs. Kennedy knew twenty-indefinable minutes ago he was dead. Now she sat waiting for a priest. It would be unthinkable to permit his soul to leave for an unseen place and an unknown judgment without absolution.

Reporters, held behind a barrier by police, saw Father Oscar Huber and Father James Thompson escorted through the Emergency entrance. Some rushed back to radio cars to report. Led to Trauma One, with Father Thompson following his pastor, the priests saw a wheeled table with a figure covered from over the head to knees. Seeing the snowy feet, Father Huber thought, "There is no blood in this man." He crouched to open the bag for the holy oils, the cotton batting, a prayer book. Putting the stole around his neck, he glanced around and saw Mrs. Kennedy. The priest whispered, "My sincerest sympathy goes to you," before he stepped to the body and peeled the sheet back from the head to the bottom of the nose. The eyelids were closed now.

Father Huber said: "I absolve you from your sins in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

The Roman Catholic Church maintains that the sacrament of Extreme Unction is not valid if the soul has departed. The thumb of the priest dipped into holy oil and traced the sign of the cross on the forehead. "Through this holy anointing," he said softly, "may God forgive you whatever sins you may have committed. . . ." Mrs. Kennedy, Doctor Burkley, and Father Thompson stood repeating part of the prayers. As he turned to leave, Mrs. Kennedy hurried to Father Huber and took his arm.

"Father," she said, obviously frightened, "do you think the sacraments had effect?" "Oh, yes," he said. "Yes, indeed." Out in the hall, two Secret Service men took the priest by the arms. "Father," one of them said, "you don't know anything." He understood. Outside, walking toward their parked car, reporters engulfed them. "Is he dead?" "Tell us what he looked like." "Did Mrs. Kennedy say anything?" Father Huber rubbed his mouth and begged God's forgiveness. "He was unconscious," he said — an answer that was to be misquoted and falsified — and hurried into the car.

WEDNESDAY: While the assassin was roaming Dallas without design for escape, the corpse of his victim had to be wrested from Dallas authorities for secret removal from the city. Jim Bishop separates clearly facts from confused, conflicting accounts and guesswork of previous reports of the dreadful day.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hate you because you are so unsympathetic to fat people. In your column today you insulted us again and I am just about ready to cancel my subscription to the paper.

Don't you know fat people can't help it? Do you think we enjoy looking terrible? How would you like to be 21 years of age and not have had a date in your whole life? Do you think it's fun to shop for clothes and discover you've gone up another two sizes?

You can't imagine what it's like to have a hostess lead you to the sofa when you've just about seated yourself on a woodback chair because it's better for your back. You know, of course, she is afraid to let you sit in the chair for fear you'll break it. Everyone else knows it, too.

I refuse to spend any more money on doctors because I don't have the will power to stick to a diet. So what do I do? I eat myself sick and cry myself to sleep. Pity us fat people, Ann. We despise ourselves for being this way but we can't help it. — COLUMBUS, OHIO BLUES

DEAR C.O.: Sorry, I refuse to pity you and I don't buy the idea that you can't help it. Thousands of fat people have conquered obesity and you can do it, too.

You need more than medical advice, my friend, you need psychiatric help. Your sense of worthlessness and self pity are destructive impulses that have been with you for too many years. Only when you rid yourself of these feelings will you be able to eat like a normal human being.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I never realized so many women were married to "dead batteries" until I read about them in your column. It might help if someone told these frustrated females that sex is not THAT important. I know, because I used to have the same problem. Then one day I decided to quit making both of us miserable.

I looked at my marriage objectively and discovered I had a hard-working, faithful, honorable husband with no bad habits. He was good to me and wonderful to our children. The only thing wrong with him was no interest in sex. So what? No marriage is perfect, and ours is far happier than many couples who have nothing to say to each other — except in the bedroom. Please print my letter, Ann, it may help some women who are suffering needlessly. — MRS. CONTENT

DEAR CONTENT: Not all women are willing (or able) to make the accommodation you have made. You couldn't beat him, so you joined him. If you are content who am I to knock it?

Confidential to Sober As A Judge: Yeah? Judge Who? Some judges are more sober than others. Sorry, I don't buy that story and I doubt that your friend bought it. Why don't you play it straight from now on? Liars must have good memories.

THE FLAMING TUREEN: Prepare several cans Campbell's condensed green pea or black bean soup. Pour into warm tureen. Heat 1/4 cup sherry or bourbon in a ladle. Light with match and lower into soup. Serve flaming.

TURKEY CORN CHOWDER: Blend 1 can Campbell's condensed cream of chicken soup with 2 soup cans milk. Add 1 can condensed chicken noodle soup, a 1-pound can cream style corn, and 1 cup of diced cooked turkey. Heat to a simmer. Serves 6 to 8.

SOUP SNIPPETS: Cut bland cheese slices into stars, crescents, or other fascinating shapes with little cookie cutters. Float them on children's soups. Condensed chicken noodle, tomato, or vegetable soups are favorites with little folks.

ALMOND ELEGANCE Mushrooms with almonds can be such a dressy vegetable! Arrange nice big caps in baking dish, sprinkle with Madeira and stuff with a mixture of buttered soft bread crumbs and finely chopped almonds. Bake at 425 degrees 8 to 10 minutes.

Use 1 can condensed oyster stew in a celery-onion stuffing for 4 to 6-pound bird. It's absolutely "souper".

Two United Methodist Churches Observe Charter Night

SUGAR GROVE — Thirty women, including visitors from Chandlers Valley United Methodist Church were present at Sugar Grove United Methodist Church for the charter meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service, an organization of the recently merged United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Allene Briggs and Mrs. Gerald Miller were program leaders. Mrs. Briggs led the call to worship, using the theme "I Am the Bread of Life." Mrs. F. A. Schoonover led the prayer. A meditation, "Bread of Life," was read by Mrs. Robert Audley with Mrs. Donald Gruber, Mrs. Ray Power, Mrs. Clarence Sherrard and Mrs. Rex Jones taking part in presentation of ingredients.

A history of the past was given with Mrs. Charles McIntyre offering a brief background of women's societies in United Brethren Churches; Mrs. Hobart Sanders speaking for Methodist churches and Mrs. T. E. Spofford reporting on the merger of churches in Dallas, Texas, which she attended. Mrs. E. L. Comstock, president, led the reading of the purpose of the organization.

An impressive part of the program was signing of the charter of the new organization by each member present. Mrs. Gregg Abbott, oldest charter member of the former WSCS, formed in 1940, was given the honor of being first signer.

The fellowship of bread was enjoyed with all singing "Break Thou the Bread of Life." Mrs. Walter Storms read scripture and Mrs. Gerald Miller accompanied group singing. Refreshment committee was Mrs. Harry Sarvis, Mrs. Clifford Storms, Mrs. Burt Schoonover and Mrs. Sheldon Carlson.

A short business meeting was held and it was announced $93.35 was collected for UNICEF in the Sugar Grove-Chandlers Valley area. It was also stated teenagers of the church will deliver Christmas sunshine boxes while on a hayride.

Gifts will be taken to the Meadville home in the near future; boxes for servicemen are being packed this week and the sunshine collection taken at the meeting will be used to send a remembrance to Ronald Sherrard who is hospitalized in Pittsburgh.

It was voted to give $450 from recent bazaar proceeds to the building fund. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Sheldon Carlson, Mrs. John Lassinger and Mrs. T. E. Spofford for their work in making the bazaar a success.

What is Cordovan leather - and why so expensive?

Cordovan leather is a special horsehide first tanned by the Moors in Cordovan, Spain - hence its name. Some fine leathers are still imported from Spain and North Africa.

The high priced Cordovan is Shell Cordovan. This is a muscle or gristle-like layer or shell that is found at the hind quarters of a horse between the hide and the flesh. It is not found in steers or calves. Properly tanned, it is mirror-like in finish and very tough. It is used almost entirely for men's dress shoes.

Local Church Women Unite For WSCS Charter Meeting

Mrs. John Huston was in charge of program recently which united the women of the former Evangelical United Brethren Church and those of the former Methodist Church. Those participating in the program were past presidents of the society and included Mrs. Lewis Garber, Mrs. Walter Mathyer, Mrs. Herbert Samuelson and Mrs. Raymond Rapp. Mrs. LeRoy Hammerbeck, Mrs. James Marshall and Mrs. Norman Johnson were unable to be present.

The meditation on Bread of Life was given by Mrs. O.W. Kyler and following the service the new charter was signed by members present with Mrs. Mabel Adams in charge of the book.

Preceding the program Mrs. Donald Anderson played several selections while members gathered in Fellowship Hall. Mrs. Herbert Samuelson and Mrs. John Hartley presented reports.

Sunset Auxiliary members were reminded that yearly dues should be paid to be sent to Meadville Home for the Aged. A tureen dinner will be served at 6:15 p.m. December 9 for all circles.

Mrs. Mathyer told of the program "The Least Coin," which United Church Women are participating in. It was started by a woman in India and each woman gave a coin a month. It is now worldwide with 26 participating countries.

Society members stood in memory of Mrs. Ruth Crooks and Mrs. Ellen Courtney, both faithful members of the society.

Josephine Kriz Circle was in charge of the fellowship hour with Mrs. Joseph Knowlton and Mrs. Glenn Robinson as co-chairmen.

Members and friends are invited to attend this service.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever washed a load of curtains—made of the same material, but different in length—and spent useless time in trying to line up the matching pairs?

Well, I found a simple way. I mark each matching pair with a different colorfast thread before taking them down and, bingo, no more guessing and aggravation.

Lisa Asbury

Tiny safety pins are great, too. One pin on each of the shortest ones, two the next longest, three the next length, etc. Saves sewing and time.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I stand our furled umbrellas in the hall no matter how wet they are.

As long as they're set in paper or plastic drinking cups, they won't drip on the floor. All the water drips into the cup.

DEAR HELOISE:

I cut streamers for my children's bicycle handles from old multi-colored beach balls. Then I tied four or five ends together and pushed the knot through the hole in the rubber grip on the handle bar.

Ohio State's Triumph Vaults Buckeyes To Top Poll Spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Ohio State's convincing 50-14 rout of Michigan vaulted the Buckeyes into first place in The Associated Press' weekly major-college football poll Monday, ahead of Southern California, their Rose Bowl opponent.

Southern Cal had led the poll for six weeks but fell to second place after a hard-fought 28-16 victory over UCLA.

Ohio State's margin was 10 points—935 to 925—in the balloting by 50 sports writers and broadcasters across the country, even though Southern Cal received 24½ first-place votes to 21½ for the Buckeyes.

The Buckeyes, Big Ten champions cemented their lead by being named first, second or third on every ballot while some selectors dropped Southern Cal as low as fourth.

There was little change among the rest of the Top Ten. Penn State, with a 9-0 record like Ohio State and Southern Cal, retained the third spot at 773 points after walloping Pitt 65-9.

Idle Georgia hopped from fifth to fourth while Kansas climbed from seventh to fifth by edging Missouri 21-19. Texas, also idle, stayed in sixth place while the rest of the Top Ten — Tennessee, Arkansas, Notre Dame and Houston—each moved up one spot.

Tennessee bested Kentucky 24-7, Arkansas bombed Texas Tech 42-7, Notre Dame had the week off while preparing for Southern Cal this Saturday while Houston blitzed Tulsa 100-6, the first major college team in 19 years to hit the century mark. Oklahoma jumped three places to 11th by trouncing Nebraska 47-0 and Purdue remained 12th with a 38-35 cliff-hanger over Indiana.

Michigan was the hardest hit, bouncing from fourth to 13th.

Oregon State rose two places to 14th by walloping Oregon 41-19, Alabama, another idle team, stayed 15th, Missouri's second straight loss dropped the Tigers from 13th to 16th. Ohio University completed a 10-0 regular season with a 28-12 win over Northern Illinois and retained the 17th position.

Auburn was up one spot to 18th after a weekend off while the 19th and 20th spots listed two newcomers—Arizona and Arizona State, Arizona tripped Wyoming 14-7 and the Sun Devils clobbered San Jose State 66

0. They replaced California, which had been 19th but lost 20-0 to Stanford, and Wyoming.

The top 20 teams, with first-place votes, records and total points:

1. Ohio State	21½	9-0	935
2. USC	24½	9-0	925
3. Penn St.	3	9-0	773
4. Georgia	1	8-0-2	597

Broadway Joe's Fu Manchu Stays Until Jets Own Title

NEW YORK (AP) —Joe Namath, a bachelor who deftly sidesteps all the blizzzing young ladies, says he'd let his kids grow mustaches if they wanted to.

"Yes, I would," said the New York Jet quarterback who's been wearing a mustache of the Fu Manchu variety, the kind that blossoms above the upper lip and extends down around the sides of the mouth.

Namath made the decision about mustaches and the children he may have some day while criticizing those people who knock mustaches, beards and long sideburns.

The colorful Jet, however, may be shaving his mustache soon because the Jets are within one game of winning the American Football League's Eastern Division championship.

They reached that point Sunday when Namath's brilliant passing attack powered them past San Diego. For that performance, he was selected the AFL's offensive player of the week by the Associated Press Monday.

Before leading the Jets into at least a tie for the Eastern crown, Namath stood in the Jet locker room at San Diego and trimmed his mustache.

"I'll shave it when we clinch the championship; that's why we grew them," Namath had said, referring also to a few teammates who likewise had grown either mustaches or beards.

He started discussing the situation when asked his opinion about the recent decision by general managers in baseball's American League that players could not wear mustaches or beards.

"That's ridiculous," he said. "They say it gives the kids a bad picture of athletes. The only thing that makes it bad is that parents tell their kids it's bad. Then the kids go out and see a professional athlete with a mustache, and they think it's bad."

Namath, with hair creeping down the back of his neck too, was good in the 37-15 victory over the Chargers. In the first half alone, he completed 13 of 25 passes for 277 yards and two touchdowns, teaming with Don Maynard on an 87-yard scoring toss and Billy Mathis on a 19-yarder.

The outcome was doubly significant. Besides enabling the Jets to clinch at least a tie in the East, it dropped the Chargers one game out of first place in the West, seriously hampering their chances for a rematch with New York in the AFL championship game.

Namath's brilliant performance was one of many Sunday.

Floyd Little and Marlin Briscoe starred in Denver's victory over Buffalo. Little caught four passes for 165 yards, including a screen pass that went for 66 yards and a touchdown, and a 59 yarder that set up Bob Howfield's winning field goal. Briscoe threw four TD passes in all.

Bob Griese fired three touchdowns in Miami's triumph over Boston, and Darley Brown of Oakland completed 24 of 35 passes for 368 yards against Cincinnati.

A number of receivers also stood out. Maynard catching six passes for 166 yards, teammate George Sauer five for 124, Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff, eight for 137 and Warren Wells, also of Oakland, seven for 133.

Dancer's Image Hearing Still On

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Peter Fuller made an unsuccessful attempt Monday to obtain immediate dismissal of the ruling which deprived Dancer's Image of his winnings in the Kentucky Derby.

The Kentucky State Racing Commission rejected the motion submitted by Fuller's attorney, Arthur Grafton, during a one hour summation of the case to date.

Grafton concentrated his attack on the credibility of testimony given by state chemist Kenneth W. Smith whose findings prompted Churchill Downs stewards to order a redistribution of the prize money in the race last May 4. The decision was based on his report that traces of phenylbutazone were found in the colt's system after the race.

Fuller then appealed the decision and it is being heard by the Racing Commission.

Grafton charged that Smith was guilty of "innuendos and half truths" in his dealings with the stewards and, therefore, his findings were of no consequence.

Grafton scored a point when the commission agreed to hear from Dr. Charles Jarboe, acting chairman of the Department of Pharmacology at the University of Louisville Medical School.

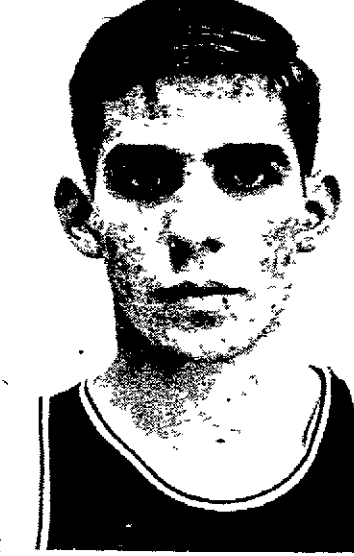

The commission attorney, George Rabe, while admitting that Jarboe was an excellent chemist, said he was not qualified in the field of horse racing chemistry.

Most of Jarboe's testimony during the hearing dealt with various other tests which can be used to detect the presence of the illegal medication, Jarboe placed particular emphasis on an infra-red test on urine and also on one identified as thin layer chromatography.

Neither of these were used by Smith in concluding that Dancer's Image had phenylbutazone in his system.

The hearing is expected to continue through Wednesday, then have a short recess for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Simpson Is Choice For Heisman Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Southern California's O. J. Simpson is expected to be named winner of the Heisman Trophy Tuesday.

The Downtown Athletic Club announced a press conference at noon, EST, at which final voting will be disclosed for the best college football player of the year.

Chief competition is expected from halfback Leroy Keyes of Purdue and quarterback Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame. Simpson lost out a year ago to Gary Beban, UCLA quarterback.

Tidioute Will Face Commodore Perry

Tidioute's Bulldogs will be out tonight to avenge Friday night's loss to Jamestown, Pa., when they engage Commodore Perry in battle on home territory.

The Bulldogs are smarting after blowing a six-point lead to the Muskies and winding up on the short end of a 63-44 outcome. However, the orange and black is prepared to put together a concentrated drive to topple the powerful Indians of Commodore Perry.

Coach Jim Bodamer will more than likely go with the starting lineup used against Jamestown. This includes Ron Carr and Ed King at forwards, Jack Shields at center, and Scott McKay and Mark Rondinelli at the guard posts.

The varsity will get underway at 8 p.m. Jaycee action is slated for 6:30.

Warren's College Cagers Tip Off

Warren's Edinboro Campus opens the 1968-69 basketball season tonight with a journey to DuBois Penn State Campus in DuBois, Pa. Tip-off time is set for 8 p.m.

The local EOC cagers are coached again this season by Andy Randas and Ron Firestone, who guided the team to a 13-11 record in the last two seasons. Coach Randas feels that this is the finest team he has had at the Off-Campus school, and with luck and hard work they should do a lot of winning.

With three of last year's starters returning, Paul Johnston, Dave Bucka and Leo Schlanger, plus some fine freshmen, the EOC fans should see some exciting and high scoring games.

Johnston (6-4), a former all around athlete at Warren Area High School, leads the returnees from last year's squad. He is the all-time scorer at the local campus with 655 points in 24 games for an average of 27.3 points a game.

His records include: most points per season—348; highest average per game—27.3; single game high—48; most season rebounds—210; most single game rebounds—23; most fouls made in a season—52; best rebound average—15; and highest shooting average per season—46 per cent; Johnston can be called on to play inside or outside also. He has speed, height, shooting touch, agility and gives 100 per cent.

Another outstanding returnee is Dave Bucka (5-9), a former Ambridge High star. In nine games last year Bucka scored 242 points for an average of 26.9. As coach Randas puts it, "he can shoot the eyes out of the basket". Not only does Bucka possess excellent shooting touch but has outstanding spring and is a fierce competitor.

Schlanger (6-3) the third starter, is from Pittsburgh and plays a post position. He is a fine rebounder who will many times pass up a shot in order to pass off to a teammate.

The fourth starter will be Tony Denk, 6-6, from Brentwood who was a starter for Allegheny Community College in Pittsburgh last year. Denk has excellent speed, a good shooting eye and rebounds well. Hustle is his middle name. He could very easily be the most exciting player on the floor with his passing ability. He can get his passes off in more ways than can be imagined and with uncanny accuracy.

Also in the starting lineup will be another Warren Area athlete, Rick Nasman (6-3). Nasman will hold down the other post position. He is an excellent leaper, (holds the Warren Area High School high jumping record) and has fine shooting touch from the key. He could very well be the key to a fine season with his rebounding ability.

Backing up the big men will be Rich Jarmul, from Springdale, Pa. Jarmul is 6-1 and will be strong on the boards. Two other boys who will see a lot of action at the guard positions are Art Sample (5-7) of Brentwood and Dave "Rebo" Cherry (5-7) of Johnsonburg. Both boys are fine hustlers with good ball handling ability.

Completing the squad run down is Carl White (5-11) and Ken Mantred (5-7) of Derry High and Boyle High respectively, playing guard spots.

Eisenhower To Face N. Clymer

The Eisenhower Knight cagers travel to Clymer, N.Y., for their second game of the season tonight in a battle with the Clymer Pirates. The last time they met was last Friday night against a highly touted North East squad and will be making a bid to even up the slate.

New Golfers Seek Czar

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Gardner Dickinson Jr., president of American Professional Golfers, says his recently formed organization of tourney players who split away from the Professional Golfers Association, wants to name a czar for the rich tour.

"We have offered the job to someone," Dickinson said at the Cajun Classic, the year's final PGA tourney which wound up over the weekend, when asked if he thought golf needs a czar.

"I can't tell you who at this time," added Dickinson.

The feud between the PGA hierarchy and the pros, who played for a $5.6 million jackpot this year, boils down to control of the tour. The players want control of what to say in their own affairs and the PGA, thus far, has only offered them a 50-50 deal.

"They didn't want to share control, they wanted it all," said Noble Chalfant of Denver, Colo., a national vice president of the PGA, in a separate interview at the Cajun Classic. With the PGA's Tournament Committee dissolved, Chalfant was on hand to keep an eye on things at the Lafayette tourney.

"I'm sure the executive committee will never give them complete control," added Chalfant.

He suggested that the feud could perhaps be resolved by new negotiators from both sides. "Maybe if there were four players that weren't involved too deeply in this and four club professionals that haven't been involved, and maybe three businessmen, maybe they could come up with something by getting it away from the ones that have been involved in it so closely for the past year or so," Chalfant said.

Chalfant was asked if he thought outside interests were backing the tournament player rebellion. "I couldn't comment on that," he replied. "When they don't want to share with the PGA there must be somebody else they want to share it with."

110 Bears Fall On First Day

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Game Commission said that about 110 bear were taken Monday throughout the state at the start of a one-week season.

This compares with about 200 taken on opening day last year, a spokesman said.

For the first time in several years, no hunting accidents were reported on opening day, the commission reported.

The largest kill reported was a 350-pounder shot in Forest County by Gary Cyrus, Bessemer, Pa.

Hart Resigns as Panther Coach with 3-27 Slate

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Coach Dave Hart, who planted dreams of a football powerhouse at Pitt but produced a 3-27 record in three years, resigned under fire Monday.

He denied that he was fired but he said nobody rushed to stop him when he offered to quit.

"Well, it might be the smart thing to do," he said. The athletic director told him during a 15-minute conversation.

The talk followed a disastrous end to a disastrous season. Pitt lost 65-9 to traditional rival Penn State, one of the most lopsided scores since the two teams started playing in 1893.

Hart, a 41-year-old veteran of a coaching career spent mostly in high schools, blamed time-consuming recruiting for his downfall. He said the long hours on the banquet circuit and in the homes of prospects took him away from the playing field too much.

"I hope the new guy can coach 80 guys and not worry about getting 40 new ones," Hart said at a news conference. When Hart took over three years ago football—once a proud tradition at Pitt—had fallen on bad times. The previous coach had recruited only 16 players. Hart, an expert at public relations, began beating the talent-rich hills of western Pennsylvania for players, and his publicists touted each freshman team as the best yet.

This was to be the year he put them all together — "The year the Panther began to grow!" was the way the public relations people put it.

But it turned out to be the same as the other two 1-9 years, if not worse. The 393 points scored against Pitt—in games with scores like 63-7, 48-0 and 50-17—were the most in the school's history.

And in the "must" game against third-ranked Penn State Saturday Pitt fell apart.

Athletic director Frank Carver—who has fielded only two winning teams since 1960—said he went to Hart's office this morning.

"I realized what I should do after we talked," Hart said. "And I didn't see anybody stopping me."

"I think you made the right decision," Carver said he told Hart.

Chancellor Wesley W. Posvar, pressed by reporters to say whether Hart was forced to resign, said, "These things are never black and white."

Youngsville Will Launch Season Against Ridgway

By DAVE FIRILLO Basketball returns to the Youngsville area this evening when the Eagles open their season, by tangling with the Ridgway Elkers on the Red and White's home court.

Coach Paul Siegel finds himself a little short of height and experience for the upcoming twenty-two game schedule. His tallest courtman isn't even in the six-foot category, and he only has three returning lettermen in the fold.

The Eagles will be a hustling and scrapping five this year, according to Siegel. Almost every club the Eagles face will have the height superiority. And this season's schedule doesn't leave much breathing space for a slowdown. After Ridgway, Youngsville will engage Warren, Clarion, Bradford Central and Sheffield in that order.

Last year the Eagles finished their season with a 12-10 record. In the Upper Allegheny Valley League, they posted a respectable 8-4 slate. Youngsville should present a formidable entry in the race for the League title, but many are picking the Spartans of Spartansburg and the West Forest Indians to battle for honors.

Youngsville will be without the service of their top scorer of last year, Danny Walton, Walton averaged 17.5 points per game in his final season.

Lettermen Tom Burleigh and Jack Maze will co-captain the Eagle five. Burleigh, a guard, averages a shade over 11 points a game. Maze will tackle a forward post. His average output a game was in the vicinity of five points plus. Both lads are seniors and stand 5-feet 11-inches tall. The only other veteran on the squad is senior Dick Andress, who probably will be a spot starter.

The Yucha brothers worked their way into the starting line-up for tonight's game. Paul stands 5-feet 11-inches and is in forward post. Brother Randy on the other hand will tip the ball at center. Guard Steve Stec will be used in the role as playmaker.

Game time this evening is scheduled for 8 p.m. The Jayvees will get underway at 6:30 p.m. Tickets will be sold at the door until half time of the varsity game.

'69 Chevy Nova SS Coupe

We'd say compare Nova SS with its closest competition.

If anything came close.

Nobody else has anything like the Chevy Nova SS. The Nova SS comes onto the scene with power disc brakes, beefed-up suspension, wide-oval tires—the works. Under that domed hood is a standard 350-cubic-inch 300-hp V8. For even more varoom, you can add a 350-hp or 375-hp version of the Turbo-Jet 396. You can get the whole Nova SS story at your Chevy dealer's Sports Shop. Even if the competition came close to Nova SS, we wouldn't worry. Close only counts in horseshoes.

Opening lead: Eight of ♠ Today's hand produced a substantial swing when it was dealt in a recent team-of-four match. The four heart contract was reached by North and South at both tables, but the results were strikingly different, for one declarer succeeded in scoring an over-trick while the other fell one trick short.

The opening lead by West was the eight of spades at both tables, but the two declarers' respective techniques differed from the outset. One South put up the ten of spades from dummy and, when this was covered by East's queen, he played the ace from his hand.

A diamond was led at trick two and West rose with the ace to return another spade. East won two tricks in the suit to complete the defensive book and then he led a fourth round of spades. South discarded a club and West ruffed in with the ten of hearts, forcing North to over-ruff with the ace. Try as he might, declarer was unable to avoid losing a trump trick to East subsequently, and he suffered a setback on the deal.

At the other table, when East covered the ten of spades with the queen on the opening lead, declarer permitted him to hold the trick. East could not continue the suit profitably, so he shifted to the ten of diamonds. West played the ace and returned a diamond, taken by North's king—on which South discarded his remaining small spade. A spade was led to the ace, and dummy was re-entered with the king of clubs so that declarer could ruff a spade with the deuce of hearts.

The ace of clubs was played and a small club trumped with the queen's four of hearts. South ruffed the diamond return as East discarded a spade. The king of trumps was cashed, felling West's lone ten and South trumped his last club with the ace of hearts as East helplessly overruled. On the diamond return from dummy, South sat behind East's jack-eight of trumps with the queen-nine. Declarer took the last two tricks to chalk up an over-trick.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars, FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Make no changes in matters now producing good results, but DO accept changes that benefit the many and complete the total picture. (April 21 to May 21) — Follow up and hope! TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Follow up and hope! GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Be careful not to misinterpret others' meanings or be misunderstood yourself. Avoid hypersensitivity, impulsiveness and tendencies to bicker over minor irritations. CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — A sense of responsibility will be important to success now. Do not let some matters amuse you. Paying too much attention to them can blow them out of proportion. Stress your sense of humor. LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Unexpected altercations and disturbances could throw you off course if you are not careful. But, forewarned is forearmed, so be alert and to YOUR part to maintain harmony. Let serenity be your byword. VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Mediocre efforts won't do now — especially since you have more to work with than those born under many other Signs. With skillful maneuvering, you can accomplish more than you may think at first. LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Good planetary influences stimulate your talents and interests. You should have a field day, but remember that your beginnings will be a vital factor. Start RIGHT! SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — You can take giant steps toward advancement now — if you have the ambition and the know-how. Don't launch into uncharted seas, however.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — You may have a heavy schedule now, but don't resort to haste in an effort to carry it through, and be careful not to overlook seemingly minor details. Be your usual level-headed self, and all will go well.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Much like Sagittarius, You will have to keep your wits about you. But you should also have renewed enthusiasm for routine matters as well as novel procedures and pursuits. AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Uranus stimulates your lofty aims and purposeful endeavors. You should be full of bright ideas now; ready, willing and able to carry them out.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Neither expect nor demand too much and you will be surprised at your allover returns. Fine prospects for those of you who put forth best efforts and cooperate for the common good.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a pleasing personality and the ability to influence others without seeming to. You can succeed at unusual undertakings because your foresight, progressiveness and good judgment are outstanding. Furthermore, you have a great love of knowledge and, in whatever field you enter, you never stop until you have gained all the know-how possible. This gives you a tremendous advantage. In your personal life, you MUST have harmony or you become extremely unhappy. This is foreign to your nature since you are innately jovial, gregarious and understanding. It's important, therefore, that you choose your associates and surroundings with care. Birthdate of: Robert Goulet, singer-actor; Alan King, actor, comedian.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1968 by The Chicago Tribune

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

INFLUENZA VACCINE

Many of our readers ask why an oral vaccine similar to the one that protects against poliomyelitis cannot be made to ward off influenza. Actually two forms of oral flu vaccine are available; one is made from dead viruses, the other from living, but weakened, influenza viruses. Although not so effective as oral polio vaccine, they are just as good as flu vaccine that is injected. Our researchers are conducting clinical trials using an oral vaccine that is given intranasally.

Polio and influenza are both caused by viruses, but there is a difference in how the conditions get started. The oral polio vaccine is effective because the poliovirus has to spread from the intestines to the central nervous system in order to cause disease. In contrast, influenza viruses multiply in the respiratory tract.

Presently, we are hearing more and more about the debut of a new variant of A2 influenza; the new strain is spreading from Hong Kong and Singapore. It differs widely from other A2 strains previously isolated. Furthermore, some authorities have suggested that it be classified as A3. It is not, however, a serious form of flu.

Some of the publicity associated with the Hong Kong variant has been misconstrued as a new epidemic. At the time of this writing, there is no epidemic but public health officials are concerned about this possibility.

because it takes a long time to prepare a protective vaccine. Our current supplies protect only against flu strains now prevalent in this country.

Chronically ill persons and the elderly have the greatest need for the vaccine. Essentially they are the ones facing serious complications or death from influenza. Such "high risk" individuals should be treated first when an epidemic is forecast. These include victims of heart disease, hypertension, lung disorders, and diabetes.

Antiviral agents are also on the agenda. Amantadine hydrochloride is effective against some influenza strains. Another newcomer is isosquinoline, which is not yet on the market. The interferon inducers also are good prospects for the future.

TOMORROW: Severe Constipation.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

SURGERY AND LUNG CANCER

A reader writes: Is there any use in having cancer of the lung removed?

REPLY

Yes, even tho the outcome is not too good, Surgery represents the only chance for cure. The procedure is of no value once the disease has spread beyond the confines of the lung. In some instances, this can be determined via X-rays or a biopsy of the neck glands.
